PEACH CROP SAFE EXCEPT IN NORTH, REPORT GROWERS

Middle and South Georgia Orchards Received Little Damage in Thursday Night's Freeze.

HEAVIEST TOLL TAKEN IN NORTHERN GEORGIA

Opinions Differ on Extent of Damage, and It Is Hoped That the Crop Partially Escaped Here.

There is still hope for the Georgia peach.

Reports secured by The Constitution from every important fruit section in the state, indicate that while the frost of Thursday night did substantial damage in some sections, that middle and south Georgia yielded little toll and even northeast and northwest Georgia partially escaped.

It was in the upper sections of the state that greatest harm was done, but opinions of growers vary in the estimating of it. Some think that the crop was not far enough advanced to suffer greatly, but it will be several days before true damage is known. Indications are that the crop will be much smaller than usual. In the orchards of the State Agricultural college artificial means were used to keep the temperature above freezing.

CROP WITHSTOOD COLD IN MIDDLE GEORGIA

Macon, Ga., March 28.—Reports from seventeen of the largest orchards in the middle Georgia peach belt, indicate that the crop weathered the cold last night, and that very little damage was done. Growers are expecting frost again tonight, but the temperature will be higher than last night and they believe the crop in the main is safe.

E. J. Williamson returned from Houston county late this evening and reported that from 5 to 10 per cent damage had been done to the crop in that vicinity. He says there will be about 40 per cent of last year's crop around Fort Valley.

NO MORE IDLE HOURS FOR THE POSTMASTERS

Those in Control of Larger Offices Required to Stay Strictly on the Job.

Washington, March 28.—Hereafter postmasters in the larger offices of the country are to be held strictly accountable for the time and personal attention they give their official duties. Postmaster General Burleson announced today that he proposed not merely to discourage, but to stamp out the practice said to be followed by many first and second-class postmasters of imposing a considerable part of their duties upon subordinates in order to utilize the time for personal ends.

Furthermore, the postmaster general in making recommendations for appointments to these offices, will require in addition to the usual qualifications an assurance from the applicant that his whole business time will be devoted to the duties of the position.

"It is the policy of the administration," said a statement issued from the department, "to require in all cases conscientious and efficient service from its officers and employees. Clerks and carriers are required by law to serve eight hours daily, and the postmaster general sees no reason why the postmaster, who is the highest paid employee in the office, should not give at least an equivalent in time and effort. The postmaster is selected for the position which he holds because of his presumed superior ability, and it is not fair to the government that he should employ in the office, should not give which should be placed at his disposal. It is believed that if all postmasters, instead of leaving their proper duties to subordinates, honestly devoted a proper amount of time to the personal supervision and direction of the work, not only would the service gain in efficiency, but considerable economy would be effected."

POSTMASTERS NAMED FOR TENTH DISTRICT

Washington, March 28.—(Special.)—Representative Hardwick, of the tenth district, has nominated the following postmasters in his district: Sandersville, Andrew J. Irwin; Crawfordville, Mrs. Martha E. Gorham; Louisville, Charles V. Clark. Mrs. Gorham has been appointed by Mr. Hardwick at the wish of the citizens of the town. Tallahassee has been made a presidential office, and the salary of the postmaster fixed at $1,300.

NEAR-SIGHTED JUSTICE FALLS TO HIS DEATH

New York, March 28.—Justice Henry Bischoff, of the New York state supreme court, plunged eleven stories down an elevator shaft to his death this afternoon in the Emigrant Savings Bank building, where he had offices.

The justice was a trifle near-sighted, and it is believed as he left his chamber he stumbled over a piece of carpet and fell through a low window opening into the shaft. When picked up he was dead.

Justice Bischoff was 69 years old and had been on the supreme court bench since 1895.

J. M. SIMS SENTENCED TO THE ATLANTA PEN

Memphis, Tenn., March 28.—J. M. Sims, former president of the defunct American Trust company of this city, in the United States district court here today entered a plea of guilty to five federal indictments charging the use of the mails to defraud.

Upon recommendation of District Attorney Todd, Sims was sentenced to serve six years in the federal prison at Atlanta.

The convicted man was so overcome when arraigned before the bar for sentence he wept.

Sims was arrested in Douglas, Ariz., where he was known as J. T. Wilson, and brought to Memphis for trial.

James McCrea Dies.

Philadelphia, March 28.—James McCrea, former president of the Pennsylvania railroad company, died at his home in Haverford tonight.

Atlanta Boy, Now in Dayton, Proves Hero in Great Flood

Atlanta has a hero in Dayton, the flood-stricken Ohio city. He is Guy A. Battle, 22 years old, who formerly lived with his mother at 102 Ivy street.

Young Battle left Atlanta on March 8, to take a course in salesmanship at the college conducted by the National Cash Register company. The first authentic news that has reached Atlanta from a source other than the telegraph says that the young Atlantan has saved the lives of many victims who were in peril of drowning, and from the reports he is engaged in distributing food and supplies to the survivors.

Mother Receives Word.
Mrs. Leslie S. Battle, received a message from her son Friday. It was written in Dayton and sent to Cincinnati and dispatched from there. Here is his own story:

"I guess you have read of the flood and the fire in Dayton. I have an awful cold from being up day and night in the water trying to save some lives. I have seen lots of people drown and burn. I guess the loss will be several thousand. Mama, you don't know how bad it is. I am all right. We have turned the factory into a hospital, and our class is out five miles from town. I am going to deliver food to the homeless tomorrow, and continue that kind of work as long as the fire and flood lasts."

Additional news which reached Atlanta, late Friday afternoon, stated that young Battle had proven himself one of the real heroes of the flood. He remained in Dayton despite protests of his employers, although he was offered the opportunity of going out to the Dayton Country club, five miles out of the city, where many took refuge.

Proud of Her Son.
"I am proud of my boy," Mrs. Battle said, Friday. "I am glad he is helping and thank God he is safe. I'll sleep tonight for the first time since the newspapers printed the terrible news."

Young Battle has been with the register company a little more than two years. He was sent to Dayton to attend the school conducted for the employees of the various branches. The term lasts several months, and equips the men for higher positions. Battle is one of the youngest men at the school.

According to reports, communication between Dayton and Cincinnati has been established by means of a motor boat service.

There are a number of Atlantans and Georgians in Dayton, but young Battle is the first one heard from. It is said that a number of refugees are in the Y. M. C. A. building, among them one or two persons from this city.

FUND FOR FLOOD SUFFERERS STARTED BY THE CONSTITUTION NOW NEARS THE $6,000 MARK

Atlanta's fund for the flood sufferers in the middle West Friday night reached a total of $5,822.55.

The Constitution announced on Friday morning a total of $3,276.92 as the result of one day's subscriptions. Saturday morning The Constitution announced $1,752 more, making a total of $4,849.

In addition to The Constitution's fund The Journal Friday announced subscriptions amounting to $294.93, bringing the entire fund to $5,644.55.

Subscriptions continue to pour in for the fund started by The Constitution.

Council Aids Fund.
At The Constitution's suggestion Mayor Woodward called a special meeting of city council on Friday to appropriate a contribution to the flood fund. Council voted $2,500 for the sufferers, and in addition to this the mayor and eleven members of council gave $5 each. Of this appropriation $1,500 was wired directly to Governor Cox, of Ohio, and $1,000 was wired to Governor Halden of Indiana.

Council was enabled to do this when Mayor Woodward declined to accept an automobile which council proposed to buy for him.

In response to a telegram of condolence sent by the Ohio Society of Georgia, the following wire was received from Governor Cox last night:

"Your wire just received. The situation in Ohio is heartrending. Railroads are paralyzed and a quarter of a million people are homeless tonight. We need help. Send all funds to Colonel M. L. Wilson, treasurer of relief funds, Columbus, Ohio."

The contributions which must be swell the fund on Friday came, as those on Thursday, from people of every walk of life and from all parts of the city and state.

One physician and six members of the hospital corps of Fort McPherson have gone to the flood district to render aid to the sufferers at the orders of the head of the department of the east, located at Governors Island, N. Y. They will be on Red Cross duty at Columbus, Ohio. Should general looting start, it is not impossible that parts of the Seventeenth may be called upon to preserve order.

The men who were sent to the scene are Sergeant Hugh D. Johnson, Privates James W. Baskett, George H. Fry, Smith C. Curtis, James Grandage and Robert Kenney, all under the command of First Lieutenant Register.

The following is the list of subscriptions received to date:

GIRL COMMITS SUICIDE IN DEPARTMENT STORE

Isabel Temple, of Chattanooga, Evades Mother and Swallows Poison.

New Orleans, March 28.—Isabel G. Temple, 30 years of age, daughter of H. N. Temple, of Chattanooga, Tenn., committed suicide in a Canal street department store here today. Miss Temple, who came here three weeks ago suffering from nervousness, was found in a lavatory by a shopper after she had swallowed the greater part of a vial of poison. She died before she could be taken to a hospital.

Miss Temple went with her mother to the public library this afternoon. The young woman excused herself for a moment and walked in the street. The mother waited awhile, and when her daughter did not return, started in search of her. When found the young woman was unable to speak, and there was considerable difficulty in establishing her identity. Not until Miss Temple's trained nurse called at the police station asking that a search be made for the missing woman was it learned that she had taken her life.

The department store was crowded, and there was much excitement when the news that Miss Temple had swallowed poison spread through the building.

JOE GATINS, JR., SEEKS JOB AT LONDON COURT

Washington, March 28.—(Special.) Joseph Gatins, Jr., of Atlanta, is seeking appointment as chief secretary of the American legation at London. He called on Senator Bacon today bearing letters from Atlanta friends and relatives, and secured the assurance of hearty support.

Senator Bacon's position as chairman of the foreign relations committee, which handles all problems affecting the diplomatic service, will make his word carry great weight.

Senator Bacon called by appointment today on both the president and Secretary of State Bryan in the interest of other Georgians. He is backing Pleasant A. Stovall of Savannah, for appointment as minister to Switzerland, and is also seeking a place for Calving M. Hitch, of Atlanta.

500 MAY BE TOTAL OF PEOPLE DROWNED IN FLOODED STATES

Roll of Fatalities in Dayton, Columbus, Piqua, Chillicothe, Zanesville and Other Points in Inundated District Is Very Much Smaller Than Was Reported at First—Southern Valleys Now Threatened.

Flood waters receded sufficiently last night to show that the number of persons drowned in all the affected cities in Ohio and Indiana may not exceed 500. While many persons are still missing to friends and relatives, investigations made today indicated that many were safe who had been thought lost.

In Dayton careful estimates placed the number of deaths at 200 or fewer, although a meeting of the undertakers asserted that the total might be 800. Relief work went on rapidly in Dayton and all parts of the city were reached.

Columbus will have the next to the largest loss of life, sixty bodies having already been found in the inundated portion of West Columbus.

Fifty Are Reported Dead at Miamisburg, Ohio.

Unverified figures for Miamisburg, Ohio, give 50 dead, but in all other flooded cities the figures fell off rapidly as relief expeditions covered the ground.

Hamilton, Ohio, which had reported as many as 250 dead, did not put forth any figures today.

Mount Vernon did not confirm its previous report of 50 dead, and no confirmation was had for 32 reported drowned at Venice, Ohio.

Chillicothe and Tiffin, Ohio, where there had been reports of 50 or more dead, each found 18 corpses up to midnight.

The best figures from Piqua give a death toll of 50 persons. Fremont and Middletown, Ohio, each had 14 dead; Massillon 5, Zanesville 4, and Troy 9.

Less Than Fifty Killed in State of Indiana.

The Indiana total drowned receded to fewer than 50, distributed as follows: Peru 20, Brockville 16, Fort Wayne 6, and Terre Haute 4. No bodies have been found in West Indianapolis, where as many as 200 deaths were at one time reported.

With the situation somewhat alleviated in the flood-swept districts of Ohio and Indiana, a new menace threatened tonight in the rise of rivers in the southern valleys of both states.

At Cincinnati the Ohio, swelled by its tributaries north and south, caused alarm, and, although the situation had not yet reached an acute stage, reports from neighboring Kentucky towns indicated that warning had been issued to the inhabitants to seek points of safety from the rising water.

In Indiana alarm was felt in the valleys of the Ohio, Wabash and White rivers, but ample warning served in a measure to reduce the panic.

LOSS OF LIFE AT DAYTON WILL NOT BE OVER 200

South Dayton, Ohio, March 28.—Dayton's loss of life probably will not exceed 200. This estimate is based upon a personal canvass of almost a hundred of Dayton's leading citizens, men of unquestionable judgment and reliability who have been engaged in relief and rescue work in every section of the city ever since the rising waters invaded the business section.

The property loss, purely tangible and real, will probably exceed $50,000,000. This includes damage to real estate and public works in those parts of the city where these forms of property are most valuable; to automobile stores in two leading garages and other personal property, much of which was owned by the more prosperous residents; to manufacturing, mercantile and jewelers' stocks, which were swept away; public utility plants and equipment, and it includes also the cost of rebuilding miles of asphalt streets and walks which were literally ripped from their beds.

North Dayton Fared Worst.
The loss of life is confined almost entirely to North Dayton, inhabited by foreigners and laborers. In West Dayton, which comprises districts of a more substantial character; in Riverdale, in Dayton View, and other residence districts, there was almost no loss of life. Several lives are known to have been lost in the business district, but none of the rumors that human beings had perished in the fire which swept two city blocks would stand the test of searching investigation. In fact, a score of cool-headed men who were in some of the buildings and others who watched the fire from across the street assert positively that every occupant of the burning buildings escaped.

The flood assumed dangerous aspects early Tuesday morning before most people had started to work. Consequently the loss of life in Riverdale, North Dayton and West Dayton was occasioned when dwellings, mostly of light construction, were swept away and shattered by the swiftly moving current, leaving the occupants who had fled to safety in the second stories to fight for their lives in the water.

There are not more than 30 such houses in Riverdale and possible 75 in North and West Dayton. Many houses were moved from their foundations, but remained upright and kept their occupants safely until they were rescued.

Reconstruction to Take Months.

Dayton's period of reconstruction will run into months, according to engineers just returning from the flood districts. Disposition of dead animals and the disinfecting of thousands of submerged homes present the most pressing problem.

No attempt at the rebuilding of the sewerage system will be made for several days. Until this is accomplished it was conceded the menace of disease will not have been entirely lost sight of.

Effects of the strict martial law were to be seen on all sides. Only in extraordinary circumstances were pedestrians permitted upon the streets after 6 o'clock. Reports of looting in some sections of the central Dayton district persisted, but it was believed raiding was restricted to isolated instances.

One man who was said to have filled several suit cases with jewelry was arrested. Reports that several looters had been shot could not be confirmed.

A bulletin issued from the offices of the president of the citizen's relief committee gave particular warnings to guard against disease. It was announced that an attempt would be made to start the city's water supply tomorrow.

However, it was asserted "people must boil the water at first for fear of possible contamination."

Food Supplies Arrive.
Food supplies reached Dayton in large quantities today. The relief stations were sufficiently organized to take care of the incoming refugees from the flood districts. The problem of caring for the homeless still was serious, but with the promise of warm weather, it was hoped there would be less suffering than first was threatened. Health officers report that there is only one case of lime in the city, and there is great need of more.

Adjutant General Wood today ordered that all saloons be kept closed, and declared that no one will be permitted on the streets after dark. H. E. Tubbott has been appointed chief meeting officer, with full control over all streets, roads and sewers.

Few Bodies Recovered.
Comparatively few dead were found in North Dayton today by the Louisville life saving crew, the first to cross the Miami into the section where it was thought the heaviest loss of life would be found. Indications there and in Riverdale now are that the total loss of life by flood will not be more than two hundred persons.

Facing the tremendous task of caring for its ever increasing army of refugees and recovering its dead, Dayton began its fourth day of flood under strict martial law. With headquarters at Bamberger park, Colonel Zimmerman, of fifth regiment, Ohio National Guard, initiated plans for the organization that will protect the city during the ensuing weeks of reconstruction.

Militia companies from all parts of the state reached Dayton during the early morning hours, and by noon every accessible section was under strict guard. Members of the state board of health, bringing carloads of lime and other disinfectants, were to reach here during the day and begin the work of warding off the ever increasing menace of disease.

Through Seek Passes.
From his headquarters, Colonel Zimmerman listened to the appeals of more than 5,000 persons before noon. Hundreds of the visitors waited for long hours in the five-block lines of humanity that circled through the park up to military headquarters. Most of these sought passes to go through the flood area, where they thought they had a chance to reach marooned friends and kinsmen. Only a few of the through were allowed to go, and they were compelled to prove special causes before the coveted passes were issued.

Colonel Zimmerman stated that boatloads of provisions continuously were going into the still inundated districts. Milk for babies and medicines for invalids were not forgotten by the rescue squads.

It was the aim of the military organization to keep from the danger line all persons seeking friends. "Be satisfied you're not dead yet" was the colonel's disposition of many of the applicants.

Men of the Toledo naval reserve launched their staunch boats into the swift current that cut off the fire area about Third and Jefferson, where it was reported there had been tremendous loss of life. But the dead were not so sought as the living, except by the dozens of undertakers, who almost fought each other in the competition to obtain corpses that occasionally edged out of the main flood into piles of debris now high and dry.

Food Sent by Carloads.
The problem of providing for refugees was bravely faced by an army of workers, many of whom came from neighboring cities equipped with carloads and trainloads of food. In several instances carloads were declined.

"We can't tell how much we need this morning," said John M. Patterson, "and we don't know in just what shape we want some of the supplies. For instance, there came a carload of flour. We can use it later, but if that flour had been made into bread it would have been immediately available for the persons imprisoned in their homes whom it has been impossible to remove. We could take bread to them, but flour is not serviceable."

Mr. Patterson, as aide in charge of the southern military district of Dayton, issued an order this morning to all householders to build a cess pool in the back yard of his place. This is the first safeguard ordered to prevent spread of disease. Dayton's sewage system is completely wrecked. Officers of the city refused to venture an estimate of when it might be restored.

NEW YORK VALLEYS ARE ALL UNDER WATER

Albany, N. Y., March 28.—Scores of cities and towns throughout the Mohawk and Hudson valleys are partially inundated as the result of the worst flood in years.

The waters of the Mohawk river were reported as receding this morning, but the Hudson river continues to rise and already has shattered the high water mark of 1857. At 9 o'clock the Hudson has passed the 22-foot mark in Albany and was still rising.

The lower section of Albany is under water and hundreds of families have been forced to leave their homes. Business houses have been forced to close, trolley traffic is practically at a standstill, railroad schedules have been disarranged and navigation on the Hudson has been suspended.

AS TURRENT RISES, CITY DISAPPEARS

Cincinnati Watches Lower Sections Become Submerged—Kentucky Conditions Growing Worse.

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 28.—As the waters of the Ohio river continue to rise, increased in volume by the flood waters from tributaries east and north of here, this city is facing the worst flood in its history. Late today the river stage was 64 feet with indications that before many hours have passed the gauge would reach 70 feet, almost to the mark of 1834, the record year.

Weather forecasters here tonight expressed conviction that during tomorrow the river would reach 65 feet and would go to the 70-foot mark early next week, probably Monday. The weather bureau also declared there would be a further rise of 5 to 10 feet at all points above here within the next two or three days.

At Cincinnati the conditions are not yet acute, but it is feared that soon they will be. All the lowland to the west and east of the city has been submerged and also along the water front of the business section the commercial houses are gradually disappearing under the yellow river. No loss of life has occurred here.

Conditions in Kentucky.
Along the Kentucky shore conditions are rapidly becoming worse. At Covington more than 500 houses are reported submerged and their occupants are being given shelter and protection in public buildings.

Plans are rapidly being formulated to care for flood sufferers and a meeting was held at Covington tonight, at which arrangements were made to raise a sufficient fund for the poor. At the same time arrangements were also made for policing the flood zone and preventing looting.

As the Ohio and Licking rivers rise and the former attains the 70-foot stage, more and more of Covington recedes beneath the surface of the flood waters. Inhabitants of the western end of the city have left their homes.

The river front section of Ludlow is deep under water and the residents have removed. Bromley is entirely cut off from other neighboring towns.

Dayton, Ky., and other nearby small towns are in the same isolated condition and there is much suffering in consequence.

Many of the large manufacturing plants have closed because operatives have been unable to reach their places of employment.

Newport in Bad State.
Newport, which, with Covington, is opposite Cincinnati, forming the larger of the suburban sections, is in almost as bad a case as its neighboring city. The flood is rising in all parts of the town. Street car lines soon will have to be abandoned and it is feared that before many hours the lines into Cincinnati will have to cease operation.

This also is true of Covington lines. Electric light and gas plants also are threatened.

One of the bridges across the Ohio has been closed and authorities are preparing to close others to the public. This cutting off the south shore from communication with Cincinnati and also closing practically the only railway outlet this city has had to the south and east.

No food shortage is anticipated in this section, but warnings have been issued by the mayors of this and other nearby cities that merchants must not take advantage of the situation to charge extortionate prices. All attempts at this nature here have been promptly curbed by the authorities.

The Norfolk and Western and Chesapeake and Ohio railways will suffer considerable damage.

The crest of the freshet in the James river here was reached about 11 o'clock, when the government reported the stage to be 24.5 feet, this being the worst flood since 1871. The Chesapeake and Ohio, Norfolk and Western, and Chesapeake and Ohio railways cannot operate trains today, their tracks being submerged. The Cincinnati and Ohio has lost a long trestle in the city which will have to be rebuilt.

At least 3,000 people are out of employment today by reason of the flood, but the property loss will hardly reach $200,000.

SEARCH FOR VICTIMS STARTS IN COLUMBUS

Estimate of Flood Death List Continue to Range Between Fifty and Five Hundred.

Columbus, Ohio, March 28.—The morgue of Columbus filled up slowly tonight as the swollen waters of the Scioto slowly receded. The number of bodies recovered from the yellow flood tonight reached 60.

Through the sombre temporary morgues hundreds of shivering survivors passed, dreading to find the faces of missing loved ones on the hastily improvised wooden slabs. Twenty-three bodies in a temporary morgue on the east bank of the Scioto, and twenty more were placed in a fire engine house on the hill top, just west of the flood district.

In the west side morgue the flood had cut off all electric power and the volunteer undertakers worked by the light of flickering candles and oil lamps. Several bodies lay in small undertakers shops in various parts of the city.

Estimates of the flood death list continue to range from 50 to 500. These figures represented largely opinions of officials in duty in the flood area. The efforts of the authorities have been directed almost entirely to relieving the suffering of those marooned in houses in the territory under water, and until all of these have been rescued, the search for the dead will not begin in earnest.

Waters Receding Slowly.
The waters are receding slowly today, and the swirling currents abated a trifle, allowing the rescue boats a wider area of activity. Hundreds of refugees harbored in the various relief stations and in private homes just outside of the flooded district have been separated from relatives, and many of them believe that lost sons and daughters, fathers or mothers have perished.

The authorities are fearful of looting in the flooded district and the militia, under strict orders, have, in several cases, arrested rescue workers and interfered with their work, suspecting them of looting. A large quantity of supplies has been transported to the flood district by automobile and rail, and the refugees are being made comfortable as fast as they can be released from the grip of the waters.

Bodies Badly Mutilated.
Today's bodies were recovered from jams of driftwood that have piled up along the shallow shores of the flood. All of them were badly mutilated and in several cases identification was difficult.

The authorities are confident the organization of a squad of men to cover the entire inundated area in the search for bodies. Up to date, 51 known dead have been reported. Hundreds of those whose homes were in the flooded district, but who were marooned in the business section of the city away from their families, were able to get to the flood section by a circuitous route a mile long. In a manner of vehicles, and all pedestrians crowded the road throughout the day and at the end of way, pathetic reunions of families separated since Sunday took place in the muddy flood-swept general secretary of the Ohio Christian Endeavor society, today issued an appeal through the Associated Press to the 160,000 Christian Endeavorers in the state urging them to forward contributions to state headquarters, 601 Chamber of Commerce building, Columbus.

JAMES RIVER FLOODS LOW VIRGINIA LANDS

Lynchburg, Va., March 28.—The James river this morning registered 23.8 feet, the highest stage since the record was established in 1892. Half a dozen plants employing upwards of a thousand people are flooded. The property losses will not be heavy and no loss of life is reported. The flood is confined to the manufacturing district. The Norfolk and Western and Chesapeake and Ohio railways will suffer considerable damage.

The crest of the freshet in the James river here was reached about 11 o'clock, when the government reported the stage to be 24.5 feet, this being the worst flood since 1871. The Chesapeake and Ohio, Norfolk and Western, and Chesapeake and Ohio railways cannot operate trains today, their tracks being submerged. The Cincinnati and Ohio has lost a long trestle in the city which will have to be rebuilt.

At least 3,000 people are out of employment today by reason of the flood, but the property loss will hardly reach $200,000.

SPARED BY FLOOD, NOW FACE DISEASE

People of Indianapolis Establish Rigid Quarantine to Guard Against the Latest Menace.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 28.—Indianapolis' flood death toll remains uncertain tonight with all reports confirming more conservative estimates of the lost, while panic is attacking cities in the southern valleys of the White and Wabash rivers and all along the Ohio as rising waters threaten repetition of the up-state horrors. Sunshine and disappearing waters relieved sufferers in the cities that have been flooded and authorities in charge of various localities face a great problem in fighting off disease before the insistent demands of refugees that they be permitted to return to their devastated homes.

West Indianapolis and Peru were placed under the strictest quarantine today. There were four deaths in the courthouse last night. Much serious sickness among Peru refugees today is threatening greater toll than was caused by the waters. The Indianapolis city board of health today curbed the West Indianapolis after ejecting hundreds of persons who had entered the flooded district since noon when Mayor Shank opened the Oliver avenue and West Michigan street bridges to the public.

Sixteen Dead at Brookville.
Sixteen bodies were found in Brookville and six still were missing today. The flood struck that town Monday night with such violence that all wires were swept away and bridges washed out and no communication was had with the outside world until a courier today took definite reports into Connersville after a rapid fall in the flood tide.

Peru rescue workers report that the death list there will not exceed twenty-five and some believe it will be less.

No bodies were found in West Indianapolis after a diligent search, but rescue workers assert they saw a number drowned and swept away down the river. Receding waters left West Indianapolis covered with mud and filth and in great danger of disease epidemics. City authorities clashed over the admission of the public to that section of the city and the board of health acting under extensive powers conferred by a law of the recent general assembly had Mayor Shank rescind his action, then established a quarantine with a close picket line. All persons but relief workers are to be kept out of the flood districts until good sanitary conditions are established.

Traffic Conditions Improved.
Railroad and interurban facilities, both paralyzed by the flood, were improved during the day and ample supplies can be sent to all stricken districts. The newly threatened southern districts are taking extreme precautions against rising waters of the Ohio and other rivers and persons in all danger districts have had ample warning of a possible record breaking water mark.

New Albany and Evansville citizens were especially alarmed at the continued rise of the Ohio, and all movables were being carried to places of certain safety. Four drownings were reported from Terre Haute, where the Wabash river continued rising. Vincennes is said to be in great danger but all reliable communicators report that place has been cut off.

Indianapolis' worst danger now lies in a wave of disease that may follow the floods. Government health authorities are reaching the northern Wabash valley from Chicago and Dr. C. O. Cobb, surgeon general of the marine hospital at Chicago, with a staff of assistants will aid state and city authorities.

Water service was resumed in Indianapolis this afternoon with warnings issued that the water must not be used for drinking or food purposes unless boiled. Street car service was restored on all lines except those cut off by washed out bridges and conditions will be almost normal again soon.

Many a bachelor has prided himself upon the fact that he was too deep to see through, when he was merely making a spectacle of himself.

RIVER AT MEMPHIS WILL PASS 43 FEET

Arkansas Lowlands Already Flooded, and Refugees Appeal for Aid.

Memphis, Tenn., March 28.—Late tonight the Mississippi river at Memphis was within one foot of flood stage, which, according to the forecast of S. C. Emery, local weather bureau forecaster, will be passed tomorrow. At 9 o'clock the height at Memphis was officially reported as 33.7 feet, a rise of 5.1 in 12 hours; at Cairo 48.1, a rise of .7, and at Vicksburg 38 feet, a rise of .2. Mr. Emery, in a bulletin issued today, predicted that the stage here would exceed 43 feet, how much he could not estimate, and that a stage of 40 feet would be reached within five days.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY GEORGIA T. P. A.

Exciting Contest Comes Over Secretary, Atlanta Man Winning.

Albany, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—In spirited contest over the secretaryship of the Georgia T. P. A., Atlanta won from Savannah today in the state convention, whose second day was an exceedingly busy one for the delegates. The Augusta post nominated Albert Ehrlich, of Savannah, for secretary, but the other posts except Savannah supported the old secretary, J. H. Andrews, of Atlanta, and when it was seen that he would be elected, Ehrlich retired and the final choice of the Atlanta man was by acclamation.

John W. Bates, of Macon, was elected president, Dennis Fleming, of Albany, refusing to stand for re-election. Other officers were elected as follows: First vice president, J. M. Giddens, Columbus; second vice president, J. L. Brink, Savannah; third vice president, George J. Callaway, Albany; board of directors, A. J. Swan, E. D. McDonald, H. M. Ashe, C. M. Garland, and E. B. Florence, all of Atlanta; Max Hanter, Columbus; W. M. Jenkins, Savannah; Dennis Fleming, Albany; committee chairman, Railroad, Cary J. King, Rome; Good roads, R. A. Grady, Savannah; legislative, H. M. Anderson, Atlanta; press, W. M. Jenkins, Atlanta; hotels, T. H. Sherman, Augusta; employment, E. L. Adams, Atlanta; state chaplain, Dr. R. R. Belk, Atlanta; attorney, James L. Mayson, Atlanta.

A resolution was passed calling for a bill to be introduced in the legislature, providing for a state hotel inspector, the law similar to the one in effect in Nebraska.

A collection of nearly $70 was raised for the benefit of the Ohio flood sufferers.

The gold watch offered for the highest increase in membership during the past year was awarded to Post R. of Albany, which showed an increase of 50 per cent. The visiting traveling men were entertained at a barbeque dinner, the convention having previously adjourned sine die.

MAMA HELD AT JAIL,

TOTS GO FOR NIGHT

TO DETENTION HOME

When Mrs. Mollie Miller, of 78 King street, was bound over in police court Friday afternoon on the charge of running a disorderly house, she told the judge of her two little children who would be left at home all alone if she were held at the jail.

On orders of Judge Broyles policemen were sent for the two children, Grace Miller, aged 11, and Vernon, aged 9, and they were taken to the children's detention home on Central avenue, where they were given a good warm supper and made to feel quite at home. They were told that as soon as their mother got out of jail on bond, they could go home with her.

Mrs. Miller was fined $100 by Judge Broyles and bound over under a $100 bond, on the testimony of four neighbors, who said that men went into her house at all hours of the night, that Mrs. Miller flirted at her window with the men going by on the street, and that she had been seen on her window of men and women kissing. The four who testified against her were H. B. Jordan, of 141 Woodward avenue, O. W. Thlander, of 71 King street, E. M. Mitchell, of 148 Woodward avenue, and King street, who runs a store at the corner of Woodward avenue, on King street. She is a widow, her husband having died last June, she says.

Late Friday night, Mrs. Miller succeeded in making bond and she journeyed at once to the detention home on Central avenue to get her children before starting for home. When she reached there the officials of the home refused to let her have them. She will make another effort today.

Brogdon, and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Carry Tarpley, Windsor; Arthur Brogdon, Buford; Paul, Claud, Truman and Miss Daisy Brogdon, Lawrenceville.

DARGAN AND HOPKINS MADE AGENTS FOR THE YORKSHIRE

HINTON J. HOPKINS.

The Yorkshire Insurance company, Ltd., of York, England, effective April 1, has created a southeastern department to include the states of Georgia, Florida and Alabama, with headquarters in Atlanta and Ernest B. Boyd, of Frank & DuBois, of New York, United States managers for the company, while in Atlanta this week, appointed Mr. Dargan and Hopkins, with offices in the Grant building, as managers for the new department.

The Yorkshire is already licensed in Georgia, but has planned no agencies therein. The new managers will be in the plant in Georgia at once, and in Florida and Alabama as quickly after April 1 as entries can be made in those states.

The new firm is composed of Milton Dargan, Jr., and Hinton J. Hinton J. In addition to the Yorkshire for fire lines, the new firm are general agents in Georgia for the Royal Indemnity for casualty lines, and will represent locally the Royal for fire floaters coverages on automobiles.

W. Q. Slaughter, for some time past the colleague of Mr. Hopkins in the Georgia and Alabama field, will be in full charge following Mr. Hopkins' resignation.

PEACH CROP SAFE

EXCEPT IN NORTH

this evening that the cold did not affect the peaches about Marshallville in the least. He said the temperature went down to 32 degrees there.

Not Much Damaged.

Marshallville, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—A temperature of 31 degrees caused many to fear that the peach crop had been killed Thursday night, but in the opinion of F. J. Hendrickson, of the Fairview orchards, not much damage has resulted. Irregular blooming of the Elbertas this year, with little moisture, saved the crop.

Little Damage in Pike.

Barnesville, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—Fruit growers here are of the opinion that little damage resulted from last night's cold. V. O. Mashburn, owner of the big Hillcrest orchard, states that after thorough investigation, he finds no damage whatever in his orchards, but he had kept fires burning all night as a precaution.

Little Damage in Macon County.

Montezuma, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—Very little, if any damage, to fruit here.

Dry Condition Saved Trees.

Marshallville, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—Fruit crop is safe from yesterday's cold. Dry condition of trees renders the fruit safe.

Light Wind Saves Fruit.

Thomasville, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—Although the thermometer dropped to 35, very little frost was reported here this morning. Owing to the light wind that prevailed all night, it is not thought that the frost was heavy enough to damage fruit and vegetables to any extent.

Growers Still Apprehensive.

Moultrie, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—Frost was generally reported this morning throughout the county. Some thin ice was also reported. So far there has been no damage of consequence to either fruit or crops. The weather is as cold tonight as last night and no wind blowing. Fruit growers are apprehensive.

Light Frost at Albany.

Albany, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—No damage was done to fruit in this section of the state last night, according to the opinion of experts who have examined the trees today. There was only a light frost.

NORTHEAST ORCHARDS

ARE GENERALLY INJURED

Elberton, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—Last night's frost did great injury to the peach crop of this section, though the growers are divided as to the extent. The prospects before hand were for a much smaller crop than last year. It will be several days before the extent of the damage will be known.

Young Fruit Escaped.

Toccoa, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—The thermometer dropped to 30 this morning, and there was ice and frost, but it is thought that fruit had not advanced far enough to be injured.

Gordon County Unhurt.

Calhoun, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—Peach experts here believe Gordon county peaches unhurt by frost.

Badly Hurt in Clarke.

Athens, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—It will take two days to tell how the fruit is all killed in this section. The temperature fell to twenty-five this morning and remained cold till too late in the day to reveal all the damage. It looks like the crop is badly hurt, though the wind may have saved a small percentage of it. The state college orchards were kept up to 32 degrees by the use of automatic frost heaters last night.

Opinions Differ On Damage.

Gainesville, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—Fruit crop undoubtedly damaged. Diversity of opinion as to what extent.

Heavy Damage at Mt. Airy.

Mount Airy, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—The general opinion among fruit growers about Mount Airy is that the peach crop was heavily damaged and the frost of Thursday night. Early vegetable gardens suffered likewise.

60 to 90 Per cent Killed.

Cornelia, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—Peach crop badly damaged, from sixty to ninety per cent being killed. Apples are safe.

DAMAGE VERY HEAVY

IN NORTHWEST GEORGIA

Canton, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—It appears that the peach crop in this section is practically all killed. There was a great deal of ice this morning and the ground frozen to the depth of half an inch.

28 Degrees Reached.

Rome, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—A temperature of 28 degrees early this morning has undoubtedly damaged the fruit crop in this section. Opinion of growers differs as to the extent, estimates ranging from one-third to two-thirds.

Half Crop in Cobb.

Marietta, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—Fruit was about half killed here, according to best information.

Apples and Peaches Suffer.

Acworth, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—The cold wave has hit the fruit men here hard. The peaches in the orchards in and around Acworth are all killed, and it is feared that the apple crop is injured.

DAUGHTERS TO MEET IN MACON NEXT YEAR

Constitution Is Again Selected as Official Organ of the D. A. R.

Augusta, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—The fifteenth state conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution held in Augusta, came to a close yesterday morning after one of the largest and most interesting meetings in the history of the organization.

Many strong papers were presented showing a splendid growth and life in the chapters over the state, now having a total membership of twenty-five hundred of the most representative women of the state. Even the smaller and younger chapters show a remarkable vigor.

Mrs. W. H. De Voe, vice regent, made an appeal for the Dodge school for the poor, which was voted by the delegates. The school is doing a great work and there were many immediate responses to the call for assistance in carrying on the work.

The present national administration, headed by Mrs. J. B. Reynolds, first prize of the Woman's National of the Atlantic Constitution, to be published June 4, the federated club women of Georgia.

The Atlanta Constitution will continue to be the official organ of the Georgia Daughters of the American Revolution. A vote of thanks being given to the constitution for their courtesies in the past.

The next convention will be held in Macon, an invitation from the National Macon chapter having been accepted.

Most of the delegates returned home last night.

BABIES HOLD CENTER OF STAGE AT TAFT HALL FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Babies big and fat, babies little and thin, some of them with smiling, cherubic faces, laughing pure infantile joy at the whole world, and others frightened at the unusual attention, and screaming lustily, were the subjects of interest exhibited yesterday afternoon in Taft hall at the baby show, one of the features of the week of the cooking school and pure food show.

The children were divided into three classes, those under one year being in one division, those between one and two years in another, and those between two and three years in the third, and then for the most popular baby of the entire show a special grand prize was offered.

In a galaxy of some 75 infants, little Phinley Calhoun, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Phinley Calhoun, was voted the most popular. The prize was a large picture by Hirschburg. So close was the contest, however, that Joseph L. Hughes III., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Hughes, Jr., lacked only one vote in the official count of having tied with his rival. The vote stood 51 to 50.

Difficult to Make Awards.
In the baby show proper, in which the relative merits of the babies were decided by judges, there was just much or more difficulty in awarding prizes.

The final vote of the judges showed the following:
For babies under one year, Lawson Peel Phinley, brother of the most popular baby, first prize of one dozen photographs offered by Hirschburg; Elkin Gilbert, second prize, offered by Mrs. Frank C. Adair, second prize of gold baby pins, offered by E. V. Hayes; Abram Leavy, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Leavy, honorable mention.

For babies between one and two years, Melvina Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Reynolds, first prize of one dozen photographs, offered by Stephenson; Margaret Nichols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Nichols, second prize, offered by C. W. Crankshaw; Ruby Palmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Palmer, honorable mention.

For babies between two and three years, Thomas J. Wesley, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wesley, first prize, offered by O'Connor; Phinley Calhoun, second prize, offered by O'Connor; Phinley Calhoun, second prize, offered by O'Connor.

A GRACEFUL VETO.

Mayor James G. Woodward has vetoed the resolution passed by council and appropriating $2,000 for an automobile for his personal use, with the statement that this fund could more appropriately be applied to the relief of the flood sufferers or to the actual need of some other city department. Conduct of that sort wins public approval.

The mayor, doubtless, remembered that only recently his salary had been raised to $4,000 a year. That was one consideration. Another is that the city is not called on to supply autos to its officials, save those engaged in the construction or other departments, where constant touch with official work in every part of the city is essential to the proper discharge of duty.

In the nature of his position the mayor does not need an auto save, perhaps, in connection with inspection of construction work. And here he knows the machine allotted that department is always available for his official use whenever required. Council therefore proceeded uselessly and extravagantly in providing an auto for the mayor, though it should be said to his credit that perhaps few officials would have turned down the gift.

His action in this relatively small matter indicates one of the characteristic traits of the man and its effect will not be lost on those who are following his course during one of the transition periods in Atlanta's history.

AN AMAZING STATEMENT.

Captain R. M. Clayton, chief of construction, presents elsewhere in this issue one of the most unanswerable arguments for sweeping charter revision yet advanced. He shows that a great many, most, in fact, of the asphaltic and bituminous streets of Atlanta are "beyond repair," and that under the present system there is little chance for relief. Captain Clayton's card is inspired by an editorial in which, on yesterday, The Constitution held up the disgraceful and dangerous condition of Peachtree as typical of all other asphalted thoroughfares, and as final evidence of incompetent administration under our present antiquated charter.

All the engineering genius in the universe concentrated in Atlanta couldn't have done anything with the streets or street construction of Atlanta with the handicap under which he has had to struggle. It is marvelous that he has accomplished anything at all. He is recognized by all who know the facts as a capable, square, devoted public servant who has simply been an official victim of the miserable financial straits imposed by the present charter. He admits that "lack of money" is the root of the evil. Precisely. And there will never be more money, proportionately for streets, schools, sewers or what-not, as long as we present the spectacle of a rich metropolis bursting at the seams under an inefficient charter.

He says, as regards the Peachtree paving, that the job was held up indefinitely because of a conflict of authority and opinion as to whether the county or the city should do the work. Again—precisely! That conflict and lost motion extends into each department and will penalize the city indefinitely until it is removed by an adequate, clean-cut, definite, organic law. As for Captain Clayton's department, he could be expected to accomplish next to nothing when, with 500 miles of streets to take care of, he is given the miserly sum of $70 per mile per year, and $3.50 per mile for sidewalks. The wonder grows when it is remembered that, despite his protests, he has been operating with but one little repair plant for all the asphalted streets in the city.

Captain Clayton has done a public service by candidly exposing conditions under the old charter. Careful reading of it will convince the most skeptical that efficiency in administration in this city is impossible until we have an entirely new organic law.

NEED MORE SUCH GOVERNORS.

The "shooting up" last year of the court at Hillsville, Va., came yesterday to the one climax it could have reached with safety to the bedrock of American institutions—in the execution of Floyd and Claude Allen, two of the mountain gunmen convicted of first degree participation. That justice took as swift and salutary a course as it did is due chiefly to the backbone and integrity of Governor Mann, of Virginia. More executives in America with his bravery and clear perspective would quickly redeem this country from the opprobrium under which it now rests as a "nation of murderers."

No normal man thinks with equanimity of the snuffing out of a human life by the law; but if ever a case justified and demanded the limit of the law, this one did. These lawless tribesmen entered the court, the temple of justice itself, and because a decision of the judge was adverse to their interest they exercised the "judicial recall" by shooting down in cold blood the judge and court officials as they stood in their accustomed places. If we are not to punish with the utmost severity such defiance of law as was this one we might as well turn the nation over to the anarchists.

Governor Mann was not confronted by an easy task. The Allens were influential and wealthy. They commanded wealth and political pressure, since it is written that even the lieutenant governor and the speaker of the Virginia house interposed in their behalf. Along with the governor, the Virginia courts stand vindicated as splendid exemplars of American sanity. For though through the different stages of the trial every conceivable technicality and emotional and political appeal was used, they meted out justice as rapidly as possible under our antiquated system. The case reached the governor, and for a long period he was subjected to a period of pressure, political and sentimental. He did not act hastily. In fact, he had previously relieved the Allens that they might be given the benefit of every legal and reasonable doubt.

But when the case reached its final stage he was inflexible. He had made up his mind as to the righteousness of the penalty, and he did his duty.

If there were more such governors there would be fewer criminals.

THE CORE OF THE PROBLEM.

Atlantans, who realize the impelling need of every-day education for the every-day type of negro will do well to attend an educational mass meeting to be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Orpheum theater in behalf of the Atlanta Normal and Industrial school, of which Richard D. Stinson is principal. Many of the foremost ministers and civic leaders in Atlanta will speak, and white Atlantans from every walk of life will occupy seats on the platform.

One sentence in the prospectus of the school should challenge the attention of every thoughtful white southerner who knows that the right solution of the problem of the negro has a vital bearing on the economic welfare of the southern Caucasian. The sentence describes the school to be "an institution for teaching young colored people to do the every-day things of life." The southerner who does not realize that here is expressed the core of the problem, in country as well as in city, has observed conditions but superficially.

Education of the negro in the south has thus far been fundamentally defective in that the larger part of its program has been directed, academically, at the exceptional negro and not at the masses. No doubt there is room for the negro doctor, preacher, teacher, dentist, lawyer and other professionals, just as there is room and demand for such among the white people. Millions have been invested in colleges and endowments for the benefit of the unusual negro, or to equip the negro to follow professional life. Only a smattering has been spent to train the negro for the "every-day things of life," those things for which he is by nature fitted and occupation in which awaits him in abundance.

There is demand for efficient negro farmers, negro truck gardeners, negro seamstresses, negro cooks, negro domestic servants. It is in these fields that the job, and opportunity for advancement, literally clamor for the man—and the man is not forthcoming. Unless the vacancy is filled, and filled quickly, the industrial problems of both of the races in the south will become hopelessly complicated, the future of both menaced, the universal crime rate fattened, for the unequipped negro is a potential vagrant, and the potential vagrant a potential criminal.

Thus is shown how far-reaching is the need for practical education of the negroes. The Stinson school is striving energetically to meet the need. It has the indorsement and support of some of the most representative of Atlanta's white citizens. But additional subscriptions must be forthcoming if the school is to expand to meet the rapidly-growing demands upon it. The mass meeting this afternoon is devoted to a plain description of the school's needs and its mission. Incidentally, there is offered an encouraging omen of progress in rousing interest in the younger generation when it is possible to induce a young man such as Edward H. Inman to preside at the meeting. It is largely from the younger generation that the solution must come. It is to be hoped his responsiveness will inspire other Atlantans.

The Life-Dance.

I.
"Life," you are sayin'.
"Is just a game o' chance."
But keep the diddle playin'—
Got to dance the dance!
In the lonesome winter,
In the time o' May,
Got to swing yer troubles
Till the break o' day!

II.
Many there are dancin'
As they danced of old—
Hands 'round and hands 'round,
The gray hair and the gold!
Little time to listen
To words the wise may say;
Got to swing yer troubles
Till the break o' day!

III.
And when the day is breakin',
A weary throng we go
To rest beneath the lilies,
And never fear the snow.
But if it be in Winter,
Or blossom-time o' May,
Lord send we swing our troubles
Till we meet the break o' day!

Suffragettes in Billville.

They get out the way of the suffragette
In brave old Billville Town—y' bet!
For they raise the roof and the house comes

When they speak their minds in Billville Town!

The men—they fly
To the timber high
When they hear that suffragette cry!

The old war-colonels—every one—
Run, as no war-cloud made 'em run!
They faced the fire of the deadly foe,
But the suffragette cry lays 'em low!

You bet, they fly
To the timber high
When they hear that suffragette cry!

LIARS.

By GEORGE FITCH.
Author of "At Good Old Slawh."

(Copyright, 1913, for The Constitution.)
A liar is a man who is not on speaking terms with the truth.

There are various kinds of liars. Some are accidental, some occasional, some are born liars, and some are liars by profession. Some liars are as harmless as doves, and some make rattlesnakes seem pleasant by comparison.

In the south a liar is more fatal than spinal meningitis. It is necessary for him to shoot everyone who calls him by his real name. This does not improve his veracity, but is great for the ammunition business.

King David once said in his haste that all men were liars. There is no record that he ever took this back on second thought. Some men lie for amusement, like fishermen; some for business, like stock promoters; some for meanness, like gossips, and some for charity, like men who pay compliments to middle aged ladies. If it were not for liars, society would be full of hard feelings, and very few young ladies would pursue their studies in vocal or instrumental music.

It was liars who first made the settlement of America possible. If the explorers who landed along the Atlantic coast had gone home and told the truth about the climate, America wouldn't have had 10,000 people by 1800.

"Ananias was the first liar of any great note."

Ananias was the first liar of any great note. He told a lie and got burned up for it. Since then liars have grown a great deal in skill, and now they are seldom even roasted. It is very easy to become a liar. It is easier than to slip on an icy sidewalk or to look at a pretty girl or to eat buckwheat cakes with maple syrup. All that is necessary is to tell one lie. If the experimenter will choose the proper lie to begin with he

Gossip Caught in Corridors
Of the National Capitol

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, March 28.—(Special.)—Atlanta's pre-eminence as a jobbing and distributing center is seriously threatened by the cases now pending before the interstate commerce commission involving the long-and-short-haul clause of the commerce act.

If the commission decides that this clause must be enforced, it will completely upset the present system of basing rates throughout the southeastern territory. Furthermore, it will cause a loss to the railroads in that territory estimated at $15,000,000 annually.

Freight rates to Atlanta must either be raised under the new fourth section of the commerce act, or rates to intermediate points must be lowered. In any event, Atlanta merchants and jobbers would lose the advantage of preferential rates as compared with surrounding towns.

When the long-and-short-haul clause was adopted I pointed out that this would inevitably be the result; but neither then nor since has any effort been made by Atlanta to protect the advantages which it now enjoys and which mean millions annually to its business men.

Neither the Atlanta freight bureau nor the chamber of commerce nor any other association representing the commercial interests of Atlanta appeared at the recent hearing before the interstate commerce commission.

Under the present basing system Atlanta, though it does not have the advantage of water competition, is made a basing point in fixing rates.

At present Atlanta enjoys preferential rates as compared to smaller towns around it which are actually nearer the shipping point. Rates from the east to Gainesville, for instance, are the through rates to Atlanta, plus the local back to Gainesville. Rates from Cincinnati to Atlanta are less than the rates to Douglasville and Villa Rica, which are nearer to Cincinnati than is Atlanta. This grows out of the present system of basing rates, which takes into consideration water competition and other factors.

To require the railroads to readjust rates throughout the southeast so that rates to intermediate points shall not exceed rates to so-called basing points, which require a longer haul in the same direction, will mean the end of preferential rates which Atlanta merchants have enjoyed.

Henry Thurtell, who has had charge of the investigation into this question of applying the long and short-haul provision to railroad rates in the southeast, as special examiner for the interstate commerce commission, estimated that $16,000,000 of railroad earnings is at stake in the decision to be rendered.

This means that the railroads are now collecting this amount of money annually through rates which on their face do not comply with the law.

Readjustment of existing rates can be accomplished only in two ways: first, by raising rates to the terminal, or basing points, or reducing rates to intermediate points. Both of these solutions are objected to by the railroads. They insist that the intermediate rates, which are greater for a short haul than a long haul in the same direction, are reasonable. Furthermore, they declare it would be impossible to raise terminal rates. Various reasons which must be taken into consideration in fixing rates are advanced to prove this claim.

Governor Brown Quoted.

Governor Brown's claim that the Georgia railroad commission when he was a member, had made its influence felt on interstate rates as well as intrastate rates, was referred to in the argument before the interstate commerce commission.

M. P. Callaway, representing the railroads, who called the statement to the attention of the commission, said Governor Brown had made this assertion in a campaign.

"Then it was a campaign statement," suggested Commissioner Prouty.

"Yes, but it contained a large element of fact," insisted Mr. Callaway.

"What?" ejaculated Mr. Prouty in surprise, as the court room roared.

"And Alabama followed suit by adopting the Georgia rates as applying to Birmingham and other points in that state," concluded Mr. Callaway.

Will Change Jobbing Centers.

J. Prince Webster, rate expert of the Georgia railroad commission, who, attending the hearing in Washington a few days ago, said the pending cases were the most important in recent years in their effect on business in the southeast.

"If the interstate commerce commission's decision in the matter is to require the railroads to observe the long and short-haul clause it will mean a revolution in the rates now effective to southeastern points. In that event I hesitate to say where our large distributing and jobbing centers would find themselves."

"Atlanta, for instance, would lose the advantageous rates it now enjoys due to the competition now existing there between the railroads. It would give to local intermediate stations rates which would not be in excess of the Atlanta rate."

"Under the present adjustment rates from Cincinnati, Ohio, to Atlanta on merchandise of the first-class is 98 cents per 100 pounds to Douglasville $1.26, and to Villa Rica $1.32, yet the latter two points are 25 to 35 miles nearer the shipping point. The Atlanta jobber, merchant and broker can have his goods shipped through those towns at a less rate than the local merchants there can have the same goods put off at those stations."

"The same condition exists with reference to rates from the east. The first-class rate from New York to Atlanta is $1.05, and to Jonesboro $1.25 per 100 pounds, though the goods to reach Atlanta must pass through Jonesboro."

There is one peculiar feature about this situation, and that is the large cities of the south which will be the most affected are not raising a voice in protest against such a readjustment as is contemplated. If rates are decreased to intermediate points, they must be increased to Atlanta, Birmingham, Columbus and Savannah."

will have to produce a dozen a day to back it up forever afterward.

The consequences of lying are many. Some men get broke, and some get fined. Others make a million dollars, and some become senators. If the consequences were a little more consistent, maybe people would be a little more careful about giving truth the cruel, chilly shoulder.

The World's Mysteries

MYSTERIES of ANTIQUITY

WHO ORDERED THE SPHINX?

Near the great Pyramids of Egypt stands the Sphinx, which is only second in interest to these great piles of stone, as many travelers find it even more so, for it is just as wonderful in its conception and construction, and there is just as much mystery attached to its building. The Sphinx is hewn out of the natural rock, and where this material has failed it has been molded into the shape of a recumbent lion with the head of a man. But by whom?

The face of the Sphinx was deplorably mutilated at a comparatively recent period by a frigate, iconoclastic sheikh and afterward by the barbarous Mamelukes, who used it as a target. It was pointed out by Lepsius in 1843 that the Sphinx must have been founded earlier than the eighteenth dynasty, notwithstanding the inscription on one of the tablets—the one next the breast of the Sphinx, which bears the date of the reign of Thothmes III., of the eighteenth dynasty.

From another inscription this great Egyptian curiosity seems to have been a representation of Khafra or Chephren, whose cartouche occurs at the left of the last but one of the consecutive lines of the inscription. As the Sphinx lies nearly in a line with the pyramid of King Thothmes IV, it was not unnaturally thought that he was the founder of both monuments. This conjecture seems to be confirmed by the discovery of the statue of Chephren in the rock temple adjoining the Sphinx.

But the monument has even been supposed to be entitled to claim still higher antiquity, for M. Mariette, while examining a ruined building at the foot of the southernmost of the three pyramids, which rises to the east of the Great Pyramid, found a stone built into a wall bearing an inscription which seemed to imply that the Sphinx already existed in the time of Khufu, the builder of the first pyramid. The inscription on the right side of the stone runs literally thus: "The living Horus, the King of Upper and Lower Egypt, Khufu, the life-dispensing, found the Temple of Isis, the patroness of the pyramid in the place of the Temple of the Sphinx."

The Sphinx is 18 feet long by 66 feet in height. The body was left in a rough form, but the head was originally most carefully executed. It would seem from Abdellatif's account that it was in perfect preservation in his time (1162-1231). He says: "This face is very pleasing, and is of a graceful and beautiful type; one might almost say that it smiles winningly." An older writer, however, says the nose was mutilated in his time, and, as it is now entirely destroyed, the face somewhat represents the African type, though the mouth still has a smiling appearance.

The face looks out due eastward from the pyramid field over the Nile valley, and according to the inscription of the eighteenth dynasty in the shrine between the paws, it represented the sun god Harmachis. The Arabs believed that the figure possessed the supernatural power of preventing the encroachment of the sand.

The complete excavation of the Sphinx was first undertaken by Cavillia in 1817 under the auspices of an English society. He discovered the flight of stairs which ascended to the stupendous monument and also found between the paws of the lion a carefully laid pavement, at the end of which, next to the breast of the Sphinx, rose a kind of open temple, divided by two partitions, through which ran a passage, containing a small figure of a recumbent lion, facing the Sphinx, in the middle.

Thothmes III. restored the Sphinx, it is said by some writers, and seems especially to have revered it, as is indicated by several small monuments which bear the figure of the Sphinx coupled with his name or his portrait. In the inscription already referred to, the Sphinx is said to speak to Thothmes "as a father to his son," and to address him in the words: "I am thy father, Harmachis."

Though more or less buried in sand at various periods, the Sphinx was highly admired and revered down to so late a period as that of the Roman emperors, as numerous inscriptions upon it, now concealed by the sand, testify. Curiously enough, the Sphinx is mentioned neither by Herodotus nor any later Greek traveler, and as to the period in which it was built it is not likely that this fact will ever be known.

"MOST OF ASPHALTED STREETS ARE BEYOND ANY REPAIR"

---Chief Clayton

Declaring that a great many asphaltic and bituminous streets in Atlanta are "beyond repair," Chief of Construction Clayton, with an editorial in yesterday's Constitution as a text, gives a frank and amazing analysis of the plight to which the miserly policy of this city has brought its thoroughfares.

On yesterday The Constitution cited the dilapidated condition of the Peachtree paving as typical of all other asphalted streets, and gave that condition as explaining one cause for the demand for charter revision.

No One Responsible.

Replying, Captain Clayton presents as follows a graphic picture of city-wide demoralization:

Editor Constitution: I notice an editorial in The Constitution this morning in which you comment on the condition of Peachtree street, between Sixth street and the city limits, and incidentally on the condition of the streets in all other parts of the city. The editorial does not give the facts as they exist.

Insofar as this department having been notified by the city attorney that the city would be liable for damages arising from all accidents due to the "curved up pavement," no such notice has ever been sent to this office by the city attorney. I presume it is a fact that when an accident occurs on the streets for which the city is responsible that the city would be liable, but these matters are always handled by the city attorney when they come up, and the facts governing the accident control his opinion in the matter.

As to the condition of Peachtree street, from Sixth to the city limits, I will state that this pavement was laid by the county commissioners, and last fall I put a gang of men to work making the repairs on this street, when the street was in such a condition that the repairs would have probably kept it in a comparatively smooth condition. Immediately after I commenced making these repairs I saw an interview in The Constitution from Mr. Shelby Smith, who represents the commission government of Fulton county, that the county expected to make these repairs, and had a contract with Warren Brothers to furnish the material free of cost, and that the work that I was doing was an absolute waste of the city's money.

Who Is Responsible?

I immediately took this matter up with Mr. Smith, and told him that I would suspend any further operations and leave the street for the county to look after. Since that time the county has done nothing toward remedying the condition of this street, and the property owners have been before the street committee asking to have the street repaired. The condition of the street is now such that it is beyond the stage of repairs, and a new pavement should be laid, and I so reported to the street committee when it was in session, and suggested that a new pavement be laid at the expense of the property owners. This the committee of citizens objected to, and I understand they have been negotiating with the county to do this work, with what success I am not able to say.

As to the condition of the asphaltic and bituminous streets in other parts of the city a great many of them are even in a worse condition than Peachtree street, and have passed beyond the stage of repairs, and should be relaid. Some of these streets have been down 12 to 15 years, and have now been in use longer than the average life of this class of pavement.

As to the temporary repairs that were made on Peachtree street which you seem to think was done at a considerable cost on the part of the city, I will state that there were some few holes there that were dangerous to the traveling public, and we had some broken stone put into them to try and keep the street in a comparatively safe condition until the county could repave it. The cost of this work, I am informed by the superintendent of this department, does not exceed $50.

The Trouble.

A thorough examination into the condition of the city, I think, will convince anyone, regardless of his prejudices, that the trouble with the city of Atlanta at this time is not so much in the government as it is in the lack of funds to do the necessary work. The city of Atlanta is in a financial straits, and that very many of the western cities have experienced on account of their rapid growth, the population growing much more rapidly than the income. As you are aware, the area of the city has been doubled in the last three years, entailing a very great amount of work on the construction department, and while it is true that the area has been so largely increased, the appropriations have not been made proportionately to this increase, and without means, it is absolutely impossible for any one, regardless of whether he represents a government by council or a government by commission, to keep up these streets without an appropriation commensurate with the cost of the work.

As to the merits of these two forms of government, it is a matter of the utmost indifference to me, so far as I am personally concerned, my only interest is for the good of the city. I will state that the expiration of my present term to sever my connection with the city and enter some other field of operations.

Chief of Construction.

PEACHTREE PAVING WILL COME SOON

Shelby Smith, Chairman of the County Board, says the Work Will Go Forward.

Shelby Smith, chairman of the board of county commissioners, said yesterday in reference to the county's attitude in the matter of repaving Peachtree beyond Sixth street: "Yes, this work will be done by the county just as it was originally done. The board of county commissioners has already ordered it, and just as soon as the weather permits our paving squad will be put to work on the street, and we expect to make just as perfect a job of it as experience and good material will accomplish."

"The truth is the pavement never was properly put down. We expect to rush this work through as soon as possible, and it is among the very first the county has scheduled for the spring. We propose to put Peachtree in good condition all the way out to the county line. We recognize that the street is in a horrible fix, and that repairs that have been needed have now become emergent. The trouble will soon be over."

CATHOLIC CHURCH IN ATHENS WILL BE DEDICATED SUNDAY

The new Catholic church in Athens, Ga., will be dedicated on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock mass, and it is expected that a number of Atlanta people will go over for the ceremony.

Father Clark, the pastor, will have as his guests a number of visiting clergy, including Father Horton, of Atlanta, who was formerly pastor in Athens, and Father Guinan, while Bishop Kelley will be present to consecrate the main altar.

Atlanta people going to Athens on the early train Sunday morning will arrive there in time to hear mass.

MAYOR WILL VETO REBUKE AND PRAISE FOR POLICE BOARD

Mayor Woodward is preparing a little shock for council. He is going to send it all done up in a neat little package with a perfectly nice little rubber band around it, and it will be labeled:

"Rubbish."

The package contains papers adopted by council but the mayor says he cannot make head or tail of them. So he is going to veto them and send them back to council with a request that the aforesaid council make it plain just what the members are driving at.

One of the vetoed papers is a resolution by Alderman Candler rebuking the police commission for "trailing" Chief Beavers one Sunday afternoon about three weeks ago, and the other is a resolution by Alderman Nutting which says in effect that Atlanta's police board is the best that ever was.

Now Mayor Woodward wants to know what council is driving at. He is perfectly willing to let council have it out with the police commission, but he does not want to be being put in the attitude of refereeing the bout.

"If they tell me what they want to do," the mayor says, "maybe I can help them. If I approve both papers I'll be calling myself a liar. So there you are."

ABANDONMENT CHARGED HE FIGHTS FOR LIBERTY

Savannah, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—Claiming that he has offered to make a reasonable bond and is entitled to be released, A. N. Smith, a Pierce county man who is a prisoner here charged with abandoning two children, sued out a writ of habeas corpus today.

Smith is being held by Chief of Police Meldrum on a warrant that was sent here from Pierce county.

The charge was made by E. A. Anderson, who made the affidavit in the warrant that Smith left his two children without any means of support back home and came to Savannah. Judge Charlton signed an order citing Chief Meldrum to produce the prisoner in court.

AT THE THEATERS

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Grand.)

Just two more performances, the matinee and the night performances today, and the excellent bill at the Grand will have passed along. James J. Morton, that fellow of infinite jest, is a headliner next week, and among the features will be Paul Morton, late of the Four Mortons, and his new partner, Naomi Glass, J. C. Nugent and company, a real popular local favorite, and Howard's Animal Spectacle.

Musical Comedy Tabloid.

(At the Forsyth.)

Murphy's Steel Pier Minstrels have about concluded their engagement at the Forsyth. Today they will appear at matinee and at the two scheduled night performances. Next week, commencing with matinee on Monday, musical tabloid is to return. The show will be "School Days." A big company of jolly funmakers, supported by a chorus that is said to be most attractive, will present the delightful little show.

"Human Hearts."

(At the Lyric.)

Next week the stage of the Lyric will be devoted to the presentation of the popular and highly successful play, "Human Hearts," with a company of superior excellence and strong night performances. The author of the play is an actor of wide experience, and fully understands the art of play-making from the standpoint of both the spectator and actor. His effects are produced quickly, but none the less does he hold the audience over the passions of his auditors.

CONDUCTOR IS HELD AFTER POLICE TRIAL FOR SHOOTING NEGRO

For shooting a negro on the steps of a Decatur car, and for carrying concealed weapons, C. L. James, a street conductor, was bound over to the higher court reached to bond Friday afternoon in police court.

A large number of witnesses testified in court on both sides, but Judge Broyles ruled that the evidence showed there was not sufficient provocation to justify the conductor endangering the lives of passengers by drawing his gun and shooting at a troublesome negro.

The shooting happened at 3 o'clock on Wednesday night, March 12, at the corner of Pryor street and Edgewood avenue. Milton Ward, the negro, kept insisting that the conductor pay him 20 cents change he claimed was coming to him, and when the conductor kicked him off the platform, just as the car started for Decatur, the negro reached his hand to his hip. Thinking the negro was going to shoot, James drew his own pistol and shot him twice in the arm.

The negro, who has been in the hospital since the affair, explained in court that he only reached to his hip to rub the spot where the conductor had kicked him.

Rome, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—D. V. Gasson, business manager of the Tribune-Herald, who was marooned at Van, Ohio, on visit to his old home, describes graphically the conditions in the flood district, in which he formerly lived, as a special to his paper. The little Rains boy is described as having sandy hair, blue eyes and fair skin. When he left home he wore two pairs of old overalls, a hickory shirt and a little black hat.

POSTAL CARD VOTE ON NEW CHARTER

Charles T. Hopkins Outlines Fate of All Previous Charters in Vigorous Address to Committee of 125.

At a meeting Friday in the city hall of the committee of 125 chosen at the recent charter mass meeting, Charles T. Hopkins outlined in his picturesque and convincing manner the history and fate of all former proposed charters and made a powerful plea to prevent the present proposed charter from going the waste-basket way of its predecessors.

It was decided at this meeting to feel the public pulse on the matter by a postal card vote. The cards will shortly be mailed to every registered voter in the city. Mr. Hopkins believes that the fight for the new charter has already been won. Captain James W. English presided at Friday's meeting.

In Mayor Woodward's office the following signed a letter, a copy of which is to accompany each post card, informing the voters of the situation:

Mayor James G. Woodward, J. W. English, K. O. Frank Coker, Thos. H. Goodwin, L. D. Hicks, Albert S. Adams, Ivan E. Allen, G. T. Fraser, M. Rich, V. L. Johns, W. A. Fuller, Dan Rieh, W. H. Worth $10.75 to Hit Him, Says Foreman of Linemen, As He Pays Police Fine

"Well, it's worth $10.75 to hit that nigger," said W. W. Terry, a foreman with the Bell Telephone company, as he paid his first police headquarters Friday afternoon.

He was fined as a result of a lively evening before in front of the telephone company's stables at 191 Courtland street, in which Terry knocked down a negro driver named Bud Adams. A dozen other linemen were in court, who worked with Terry, and were with him when the trouble happened. Terry said he had driven his dray into one of their wagons, the linemen said, and when they remonstrated with him the negro cursed them. Terry then hauled off and gave him the $10.75 swipe.

GOSSIP AT CAPITOL

Must Make Revenue Report.

The county officers in Georgia will be called upon by the first of April to make a detailed report of their daily revenue since the first of the year. Under a law passed last year, they must make such reports four times a year. So far, no reports have been received by the comptroller of the state, with whom the law directs the reports shall be filed.

Captain W. H. Harrison, of the comptroller's office, says the law is a foolish one. He says that very few of the county officers can report any revenues until in the fall, and that the comptroller obtained such reports before the new law was adopted. Nearly all the officers destroy their reports in April. "Received nothing."

Speakership in Sight

Among the visitors at the capitol yesterday was Hon. Robert N. Hardeeman, representative from Jefferson county. He said that he does not see any reason to worry over his race for the speakership.

"I expect to be speaker," he said, "but if I should chance to be defeated, I can take it as gracefully as anybody."

He came to Atlanta to see the governor about the appointment of a prison commissioner, but found that E. L. Rains had already received the appointment.

Object to Ducktown Fumes.

Complaints have again been made to Governor Brown about the fumes from the Ducktown copper plant just across the state line in Tennessee. The complaints come from the farmers in Gilmer and Fannin counties, who say that the fumes destroy trees and vegetation, and that the soil has been made sterile.

Georgia won a suit that set up its right to have a permanent injunction against the fumes, but on the promise of the company to abate the nuisance nothing further was done. The governor is now asked to force the company to carry out its agreement.

NORFOLK, VA., TO FEEL FORCE OF BLUE LAWS

Norfolk, Va., March 28.—Police Justice Barron today decided that the selling of soft water, soda and like is not a work of necessity, which means that the old Virginia Sunday blue laws will be enforced here from this on. All confectioners, tobacconists and every other store must close in Norfolk on Sunday except for the sale of drugs, food and necessities, and also bars newspapers and periodicals.

CHURCH OFFERING GOES TO FLOOD SUFFERERS

At the Central Presbyterian church the entire offerings made Sunday morning will be donated to the relief fund being raised in Atlanta for the benefit of the flood sufferers of Ohio and Indiana.

Dr. Dunbar Ogden will speak at the morning service on "A Great American Family," his address being a study of the close relations of brotherhood existing in the nation today, and the spirit behind that relation. In the evening he will speak on "Walking at Liberty."

REFORMS IN BANKING URGED ON LEGISLATURE

Program Is Being Outlined by Bankers to Secure Immediate Action.

Savannah, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)

For the purpose of considering a legislative banking program a number of bankers from over the state met in Savannah today. The bankers have for years been trying to devise a plan for a state banking department, but up to now have been making scant headway, largely for the reason that the committee has always deferred until the legislature meets before getting up the bill.

This time some of the bankers from the interior, principally from the country banks, have taken the initiative and have invited some of the other bankers to join them in the consideration of a scheme for creating a banking department.

The idea is to interest some of the legislators in the matter and have a suitable bill drafted sufficiently far in advance of the meeting of the general assembly to give the proposed legislation wide circulation, to the end that all who are interested may become entirely familiar with it.

This is the second meeting of the bankers within the last few weeks, the other being held in Atlanta recently.

Reform in the state banking laws has been a subject of lively discussion in the bankers' conventions for years. They have always agreed that some legislation was badly needed, but have always failed to get it passed.

Among those who attended this conference were President Benjamin W. Hunt, Edenton; Frank S. Jones, Bainbridge; Rufus Brown, Augusta; George H. Smith, Brunswick; R. O. Fitts, Cedartown; L. R. Farmer, Louisville; F. T. Hardwick, Dalton; A. P. Poles, Atlanta; Secretary Haynes McCadden and the Savannah bankers.

CHAMBER ITEMS

To Entertain Commercial Travellers.

A special committee of the chamber of commerce met yesterday afternoon to consider a proposed entertainment of the commercial travellers of Atlanta. After the matter had been thoroughly discussed it was decided to refer it to the finance committee. No date has been as yet selected. There were present Mel R. Wilkinson, chairman; Brooks Morgan, Lynn Fort and Wilmer L. Moore.

Business Men's Conference.

The executive committee of the chamber has appointed Secretary Walter G. Cooper to represent Atlanta at the Business Men's conference in Richmond, Va., on April 15, 16 and 17. The conference will have three sections; for farmers, school workers and business men. Its work is educational and is intended to develop the south and its resources. It is expected that there will be a good delegation from Atlanta headed by H. G. Hastings, the chamber's chairman of the agricultural committee.

Committee of Housing.

The following committee, which is one of three in the department of character, has been appointed:

It has been appointed on housing: C. J. Haden, chairman; John J. Eagan, David Woodward, M. E. Ford, V. H. Grigsby, J. T. Holleman, C. T. Page and H. M. Willett. Jacob W. Fasterson is director of the general committee on charities.

Social Survey of the City.

Funds will be provided to bring to Atlanta an expert, provided by the Russell Sage foundation, to make a preliminary social survey of the city. Such surveys have been made in other cities, it is stated, with wonderful results. That in Pittsburgh cost $100,000. The purpose is to get a correct report on the city's social conditions in order that something might be done to improve the comforts of living. The chamber will be called upon to pay only the actual expenses of the trip. On the social survey committee are R. L. Foreman, Kindall Welsiger, John E. Murphy, George Muse, Linton Hopkins, F. J. Paxson, N. H. Krieshaber.

One Price System Prices in Plain Figures

Sound common sense is gradually converting merchants everywhere to the one-price system.

A dealer who marks his goods in plain figures and adheres consistently to them must necessarily fix conservative prices. If he did not, competitors would cut under them—but under this plan they do not and cannot.

There is no certainty of values if prices are not regulated.

Careful buyers do not expect to buy for less than the rightful value.

When a dealer asks you one price and then reduces his figures he admits that he tried to get too much in the beginning, and you have no way of ascertaining what his lowest net prices are.

The novice can buy here just as intelligently and as cheaply as the expert.

Our 1913 illustrated catalogue publishes our prices to the world, and the fact that our business is growing 50 per cent a year shows that our prices are right.

Miss Scruggs a Composer.

"Night Fall," a pastoral by Miss Maud Scruggs, is a new song just put on sale at the Cable Piano company's which will attract a personal as well as a musical interest.

Miss Scruggs' home is now in Washington city, but her family was formerly one of prominence in Atlanta, and Miss Scruggs was cordially known in the social world. She is a student of music as well as a pianist of exceptional accomplishment, and her many friends here who have delighted in her playing will be interested in this new expression of her ability.

The song is dedicated to her father, the late Colonel William Lindsey Scruggs, and is published by the Willis Music company of Cincinnati.

Afternoon Tea.

Delightful among the entertainments of Easter week was the afternoon tea at which Miss Lula Dean

Jones was hostess yesterday, the occasion a compliment to Miss Nora Belle Rosser.

An elaborate decoration in the spring flowers and palms made beautiful sitting for the large company of young girls in their charming spring costumes, who were the guests of Miss Jones, and she was assisted in entertaining by a pretty group of them.

Mrs. Joseph Eby and Mrs. Luther Rosser, Jr., poured tea. Miss Kathryn Gordon and Miss Frances Connally served punch, and the receiving party was completed by Miss Passie May Ottley, Miss Harriet Orr, Miss Hilbreth Smith, Miss Martha Francis, Miss Marjorie Brown, Miss Kathleen Benham, Miss Nancy Prince, Miss Adeline Thomas, Miss Carolyn King, Miss Aurelia Speer, Miss Corrie Hoyt Brown, Mrs. Benjamin Tye and Mrs. Jack Thiesen, and by Mrs. Sam D. Jones and Mrs. Bolling Jones.

Jardinieres of growing spirea were a seasonable decoration in the reception hall, the big blossoms of white and blue hydrangeas were outlined against the palms in the drawing room, and red roses and ayalas were used in the library, where the punch bowl set in the midst of ferns, was wreathed in red roses and smilax.

In the dining room the table centerpiece was an exquisite combination of pink roses and white lilies, which filled a white enamel basket, the candle shades were Dresden effects, and all the color details were pink.

Miss Jones was gowned in white satin draped with shadow lace with a finish in silver. Mrs. Rosser wore rose chamoise trimmed with shadow lace. Mrs. Jones wore canary-colored chamoise veiled with black lace. Mrs. Bolling Jones wore a black velvet gown with rhinestone embroidery.

To Mrs. Morris.

Mrs. Valdemar Gude was hostess yesterday at an enjoyable bridge party at the East Lake clubhouse, when sixteen married friends were invited to meet Mrs. John Morris, Jr.

The game was played in the living room, where the decorations were a pretty arrangement of daffodils, and a dainty luncheon was served.

To Miss Phelan.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kiser entertained a few friends informally last night in their apartments at the Georgian Terrace in compliment to Miss M. A. Phelan.

To Miss Eubanks.

Mrs. James Carlisle Smith gave a pretty party yesterday in compliment to her sister, Miss Dessa Eubanks. Yellow tulips and jonquils, with ferns and flowering plants, were used in decorations, and the score cards were horse shoe and wedding bell designs. The prizes were a fan and embroidered handkerchiefs, and the guest of honor was showered with gifts in linen.

Buffet Supper.

A happy affair of last night was the buffet supper given by Miss Jennie Knox at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pittsburgh Knox, in compliment to her attractive guest, Miss Virginia McCormick, of Baltimore. Forty young people were present, and after an elegant supper they enjoyed dancing, an orchestra providing music.

The reception rooms had tasteful decorations in bouquets and ferns, and in the dining room sweets and coffee were served from a table picturesque in blue and white, the centerpiece of Miss Knox was a lovely hostess wearing black chiffon with a revealing touch of red. Miss McCormick wore pink crepe de chine with drapery of lace.

Another visiting belle was Miss Benham, of St. Louis, the guest of Miss Marjorie Brown.

Evans, has been postponed until further notice on account of Mrs. Chas. W. Daniel and John E. Wise being in attendance at the revival services now being held at the Second Baptist church.

Bridge Tea.

A handsome entertainment yesterday was the bridge tea given by Mrs. Hugh McKee in compliment to Miss M. A. Phelan, the occasion characterized by elegance of detail and the happiest spirit.

The reception floor had artistic decoration in foliage plants and flowers from Bothouse and garden. Especially effective was the decoration in the drawing room, where the flowers were branches of peach blossoms massed on the mantel and in the wall pockets.

In the dining room gold and white was the combination of color prevailing. The table centerpiece was a Marie Antoinette basket of jonquils, the handle tied with Dresden ribbon, the candle holders shades of gold flange, the crystallized fruits and bonbons were yellow and the lace were flowers.

Receiving with Mrs. McKee were Miss Phelan and Mrs. Leight Palmer, of Washington, and Mrs. Wilmer Moore Pouredette.

HOME-COMING SERVICE

IS HELD AT ST. PAUL'S

A "home coming" service was held at St. Paul's Methodist church last evening and every seat in the church was filled. The special service was to bring together all the members of the church for an hour of prayer for the blessings they had received. Dr. Morrison, the revivalist, who is conducting the revival at St. Paul's, spoke of the relations of the church and the family.

The revival will close Sunday night. It will then have lasted two weeks and during that time Dr. Morrison has preached twice and frequently three times a day to large congregations.

On Sunday afternoon there will be a special meeting at 8 o'clock for men only. Dr. Morrison says he wants to have a heart to heart talk with the men of Atlanta and he wants to make the talk when no women are present. An invitation to all the men in Atlanta is extended.

The church can be reached by taking a Woodward avenue car and getting off at the corner of Grant street and St. Paul avenue.

MISS KATE DRISCOLL

WIRES SHE IS SAFE

News of the safety of Miss Kate Driscoll in Hamilton, Ohio, came at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon to Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Burge, with whom she had been visiting in Atlanta for the past month.

Miss Driscoll has recently returned from the Sudan, where, for eight years, she was a missionary of the Christian Missionary Alliance of New York, and while there she was supported by the Young People's society here in Atlanta which was a branch of the alliance.

She left here Monday to visit her brother and sister in Hamilton, her former home, and fears were entertained for her safety, as her relatives live in South Hamilton, where the flood havoc has been severe.

NO PERMANENT INJURY

SEEN IN SOUTH GEORGIA

Americus, Ga., March 28.—(Special.) While the temperature dropped below the freezing point here this morning, both ice and frost being visible, orchardmen express the opinion that the peach crop has sustained no permanent injury.

The high winds prevailing throughout the night preceding had dried the peach blooms of moisture, and this tended to save the crop from serious damage. Other tender vegetation appears to have escaped destruction likewise.

BREAK GROUND TODAY

FOR NEW Y. M. C. A.

The ground for the new Y. M. C. A. buildings on Luckie street will be broken with impressive ceremonies this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

A program of music and speaking will be carried out on the grounds. The public is invited to attend.

PRETTY DEBUTANTES

TO BE FLOWER GIRLS

AT BENEFIT CONCERT

Clowns, and pretty flower girls, wonderfully strong men, national guardsmen in jaunty uniforms, and all the other gay and brilliant features of a festival will be part of the concert that is to be given Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the auditorium for the benefit of the Fifth regiment band and of the Atlantic Philharmonic orchestra.

No gayer fete has ever been given in Atlanta. It will be no less than a brilliant little Mardi Gras, a festival as full of color and life as an old world celebration.

The Fifth regiment band will render a concert, but the music will be only an incidental part of the festival. The unusual and particularly interesting features will be the flower girls, the clowns, the acrobats, the military men, and above all, the social prominence of the whole affair.

Debutantes will act the part of flower girls, debutantes will sell candies and pastries, and debutantes will cry their wares of dainty sandwiches from pretty booths.

NATIONAL S. S. WORKERS ARRIVE FOR CONVENTION

Miss Hazel A. Lewis, of Cincinnati, national elementary Sunday school superintendent, will arrive in Atlanta Saturday afternoon to be in attendance at the Georgia school of Bible school methods, which will be in session all next week at the First Christian church.

Several hundred Sunday school workers of southern and national reputation will be here for the convention next week. Among those who will make addresses are R. P. Shepherd, of St. Louis, editor of a number of religious papers, and Robert M. Hopkins, of Cincinnati, Bible school secretary. Disciples of Christ. They are both expected in Atlanta Sunday.

Miss Lewis will make her first address in Atlanta Sunday morning at the Sunday school of the First Christian church. At this time, it is declared by prominent workers in the First Christian Sunday school, that over 1,500 people will be present to boost their Sunday school in the exciting contest with the Second Baptist.

ABERNATHY WILL LEAD WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN

With only a week left in which Rev. J. E. Abernathy will be in Atlanta, the Wesley Memorial church today begins a whirlwind evangelistic campaign in which practically the entire membership of one of Atlanta's biggest churches will be engaged.

Seldom before have as many members of one congregation been so united in a special effort as will be during the coming week. Dr. Abernathy will preach twice daily: Ted C. J. Lynne, a former vaudeville artist, will sing at each service, and scores of church members will join actively in the campaign.

During the coming week special efforts will be made to reach the young people in the downtown district. At a date to be announced later, a great children's meeting, at which it is expected several hundred young folks will be present, will be held.

During the week the evening services will be held at 7:45 o'clock, as heretofore. The noonday services, however, will give way to services at 3 o'clock every afternoon. It is planned to hold a big meeting at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, at which time Dr. Abernathy will deliver his address on "Life Lessons From Niagara Falls." At this meeting Mr. Lynne will sing a number of special songs. Other Sunday services will be held at 11 a. m. and at 7:45 p. m.

CONFERENCE DECIDES NEW TERMINAL SITE

Representatives of Macon, State and Roads, Agree to Retain Present Location.

Macon, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—Macon's new $1,500,000 Central of Georgia terminal station is to be located on the site of the present depot on Broadway. This was decided at the joint conference here today between the railroad commission, officials of the railway company and committees from the local chamber of commerce and city council.

After the conference Chairman Candler of the railroad commission instructed the Central to submit plans for a new terminal station on the site of the present one within a period of thirty days. It is said that the same plans as were intended for Cherry street can be adapted to the present Broadway location with very few changes.

A drawing similar to the one prepared by the Central for Cherry street was submitted by a local engineer and was turned over to the railroad engineers. They said the plan would probably be followed by them. It provides for an open court or plaza in front of the station similar to that of the Atlanta station and a series of train sheds covering the tracks, which will run diagonally across behind the station proper. Instead of backing in and out of the station, as is now necessary, the trains will pass right on through without that formality.

The conference today was marked by the best of feeling. The main object of the Central in wanting to locate its depot on Cherry street was in order to bring its freight depot closer to the business center of the city. The adoption of the present location for the passenger depot means that the new freight depot and yards will have to be located a block or two farther on Fifth street than they now stand.

LEAVES ATLANTA TO LOOK FOR DAUGHTER TAKEN BY GYPSIES

After staying with the matron at police headquarters for over a week, while the police were searching for her daughter carried off three years ago by gypsies, Mrs. Magdalene Small, of New York city, left Atlanta yesterday morning for Union Point, Ga.

Telegrams received from the sheriff at that place said that a band of gypsies were in camp near there, and that a little girl was living with them that answered the description of Mrs. Small's daughter, Mary Gretchen Small. Thrilled with the hope of finding her daughter, Mrs. Small caught the first train. If she finds her girl she will start at once for her home in New York, coming through Atlanta. Mary Gretchen is the grand-daughter of the gypsies with whom she is traveling. When Mr. Small, who was a gypsy, died in New York three years ago, his parents took the little girl without the mother knowing it but have had her ever since, but now Mrs. Small is determined that her daughter shall not live with gypsies any longer and has been conducting a nationwide search for them.

The sale closes promptly at four p. m. So all patrons who have not yet purchased tickets are urged to present themselves before that hour.

MAYOR GIVES UP AUTO FOR FLOOD SUFFERERS

Vetoes Machine Resolution, So Money May Be Immediately Available for Victims.

Atlanta has sent $2,500 to the flood sufferers of Ohio and Indiana. The money was voted by council Friday morning at 10 o'clock, under a resolution offered by Alderman James E. Warren, mayor pro tem.

At 10:30 o'clock Mayor James G. Woodward attached his signature to the checks, one for $1,000, payable to Governor Samuel M. Ralston, of Ohio, and one for $1,500 to Governor James M. Cox, of Indiana. The money was sent free by the Southern Express company, and it is probably in the hands of the executives of the stricken states now.

Mayor Woodward has vetoed a resolution which authorized him to purchase an automobile for himself in order that the city might promptly respond to the appeals for aid. "I don't need an automobile very much," Mayor Woodward said, "and those poor people need relief. I have vetoed the resolution because the money for its purchase would have to come out of the general contingent fund, and there would hardly be enough to make the donation immediately. I figured that the automobile can wait, but we could not hold back from those helpless people."

Mayor Woodward made a personal appeal to members of council for individual donations, and collected $50 within the brief space of five minutes. He also carried the money to the express office and sent it to the sufferers.

The councilmen who gave $5 to the mayor's fund are Thomas I. Lynch, C. D. Knight, Jesse M. Wood, George H. Boynton, L. N. Ragsdale, Albert Thomson, Claude L. Ashley, James W. Maddox, A. R. Colcord, F. J. Sprattling and Claude L. Mason.

Mayor Woodward headed the list. Two of the councilmen will send their contributions later, making the fund $60.

Within the brief space of fifteen minutes, Chief Clerk Graham West, of the controller's office, had the checks prepared for the signatures of Comptroller Goldsmith and Mayor Woodward.

A CHANDLER LADY TESTIFIES

Makes a Few Plain Statements Regarding Past Troubles, Which Are Very Interesting.

Chandler, Okla.—"For six years, I suffered with severe pains in the pit of my stomach, back and sides," writes Mrs. Ella Flowers, from this place. "I tried several different medicines, but did not get any relief."

When I first wrote you for advice, I thought I was past help, but can truthfully say that Cardui, the woman's tonic, relieved me at once. I gained at least 10 pounds, and everybody says I look so much better.

I hardly know how to thank you, for the good that Cardui has done me.

If you think that the publication of this letter will be the means of inducing other suffering women to try Cardui, publish it by all means."

There are thousands of women today, suffering from some form of womanly trouble. Are you of this number? If so, have you tried Cardui, as Mrs. Flowers did? Have you read her symptoms? Do they seem similar to yours? Cardui made her well, as it has made many other ladies well. Why shouldn't it make you well, too? We think it will. Try it.

It is a gentle remedy, prepared from nature's roots and herbs with no bad after-effects.

Get a bottle of Cardui, today. At the nearest drug store.

ATLANTA'S STRIDES, DAY BY DAY

ALL THE NEWS OF REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING

Improve Three Streets.

Extensive plans for the improvement of Whitehall, Forsyth and Stewart streets were discussed at an impromptu meeting Thursday afternoon. The session was held in the office of Mayor James G. Woodard.

Besides Mayor Woodard, Councilmen C. D. Knight, Orville H. Hall, Claude L. Mason, Alderman P. J. Spratt, were present. The citizens present were R. R. Otis, J. R. Smith, T. B. Gay, and others.

Plans for regrading Whitehall street from Mitchell to the intersection of Forsyth were discussed, also a proposition to regrade Forsyth from Garnett to the junction of Whitehall, as well as the regrading of Stewart avenue.

No official action was taken, but Mayor Woodard and members of council agreed that the three projects were good ones and ought to be put through.

Councilman Colcord, of the seventh ward, said that the regrading of the three streets would greatly improve the south side, and he says he will push them through council.

Build Row of Houses.

Building Inspector Ed Hayes issued a permit Friday morning to allow A. D. Colcord to erect a row of houses on West Thirteenth street at a cost of approximately $35,000.

Five of the buildings, according to the application, will be frame dwellings, and the other two will be two-story houses. They will all be handsome structures, judging from the plans, and will be a great improvement to the section.

Together Dinner.

One of the most successful get-together dinners ever held by a real estate organization was that at the Cafe Durand last night, when the force of men connected with Edwin P. Ansley met at dinner given by John Gilmore, secretary and treasurer of the Realty Trust company and private secretary to Edwin P. Ansley.

Atlanta's wonderful opportunities in real estate were stressed in an opening speech by S. E. Davidson, manager of the sales department, and followed out by every man who spoke.

The men present besides those mentioned were J. Hope Turner, manager of the first department, and the following salesmen: W. H. Allen, Dr. J. W. Mayson, Dr. John W. Somerville, A. A. Doonan, A. T. Todd, R. A. Flanagan, A. P. Wood, H. L. Flanagan, R. L. Johnson, S. S. Lee, W. C. Hill, F. W. Miller, A. S. Giles, C. E. Campbell, Joseph F. Nutting, R. A. Tomlinson, S. B. McKinney and Henry Jones, office boy.

It was agreed, had as much to do with making people feel at home in the office as any number of the sales force.

MRS. JENNIE EATON PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Plymouth, Mass., March 28.—Mrs. Jennie Mae Eaton was arraigned today and pleaded not guilty to the indictment accusing her of the murder of her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, by administering arsenic in his tea and through other means.

The widow listened, without showing emotion, to the reading of the bill. Her face was hidden by a mourning veil. When asked to plead she responded promptly in a firm voice.

No date was set for the trial pending which the prisoner was remanded without bail.

The impression that a commission will be appointed to determine the sanity of the woman was strengthened today when District Attorney Parker said: "The mental condition of Mrs. Eaton will be very carefully examined."

GEORGIA PEACH DROP HURT BY COLD SPELL

"Greatest Damage Was Done in Northern Part of State," Says E. Lee Worsham.

While it is a settled fact that there has been considerable damage to the peach crop of Georgia, E. L. Worsham, state entomologist, holds out hope for a part of the 1913 output.

Mr. Worsham on Friday received a report from Elbert county which is one of the most important fruit sections to the effect that great damage had been done there but that no definite estimate could yet be submitted.

Mr. Worsham says that he does not expect to be able to give a definite report on the fruit situation before Monday.

"The greatest damage," he says, "was done undoubtedly in north Georgia, but even here that part of the crop growing in fairly well elevated places stands a good chance of escaping the ravages of the cold snap, especially in view of the fact that there has been considerable wind during all of the cold spell. In the southern part of the state, too, I believe there has been considerable damage, but to a less degree than in northern sections."

J. D. BABBAGE ROASTS PEACHTREE PAVEMENT

Peachtree street should have a new pavement at once, John D. Babbage, Jr., the well-known real estate man, told a Constitution representative last night. "The present excuse for a pavement is a disgrace to the city, and if something is not done soon, the holes in the street will result in accidents which will pile up big damage suits against the city."

Mr. Babbage had been influenced in calling up The Constitution to register a complaint by his experience of the afternoon, when he came near running a $3,000 National automobile.

He was driving into town, his machine running by the side of a street car, when all of a sudden there came a tremendous bump, and his car dropped into a great hole.

"It was on Peachtree, just between Seventh and Eighth streets," said Mr. Babbage, "and it was absolutely impossible for me to avoid the hole. I was driving about 12 miles an hour, and as it was dark I didn't see the hole. But if I had, the only way I could have avoided hitting it would have been to drive into the street car or into the curb."

"My car was jolted and shaken, and the back springs were nearly torn off. I was thrown against the steering wheel with great force, and if there had been anybody in the tonneau they would have been tossed out. I don't know how much my car is damaged, but you can't drive a heavy car into a hole without injuring it some."

"The paving on Peachtree is an outrage. There is not the slightest excuse in the world for such a condition, and it should be remedied at once. The paving on Peachtree does not get soaked for some thousands in damage, and then there will come a howl. As it is, it is likely to be a horrible accident almost any day. The street should be fixed, and fixed at once."

GEORGIA GLEE CLUB

WILL GIVE CONCERT AT FEDERAL PRISON

The University of Georgia Glee club, which is now making a tour of the state, will appear in a unique concert on next Tuesday at noon, when the organization will bring cheer to the federal prisoners in south Atlanta.

The club will be the first time that college boys have ever given such an entertainment at a federal prison. Various vaudeville and musical acts have appeared there, but this will be the premiere for college boys.

The Georgia Glee club will give its Atlanta concert at the Atlanta theater at night.

HIGH DIVER ACQUITTED AT SECOND TRIAL FRIDAY

Robert M. Brown, the prisoner in the case which has been a federal trial, was acquitted yesterday afternoon in the criminal division of the superior court on the charge of larceny after trust, preferred by Mrs. Alice Cumby, of 73 Nelson street.

Brown came to Atlanta last summer when the bathing season at Piedmont lake was in full swing and brought with him Miss Nora Leahy, a high diver, who started Atlanta bathers by series of fancy dives and some record swimming. Later Brown attempted to exhibit Miss Leahy in a downtown vaudeville house and borrowed money from Mrs. Cumby, with whom he boarded. She claimed later that he had obtained the money under false pretenses and had him arrested.

The man who faced the jury Friday afternoon was one of the first men who lived in search of the battleship Maine, when the government authorities were considering the feasibility of raising the hulk, according to the story he told last summer.

The fact that saws were found in his cell was not used on him at the present trial, as the state had no way of proving that he was cognizant of their presence.

Brown has a lengthy experience with Georgia justice. He faced three justices of the peace court before he was ever bound over. His case was taken up three times by the grand jury before he was indicted, and this is his second trial in the superior court, as a mistrial resulted the first time. When the mistrial Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey attempted to have the case transferred to the city court, but failed.

Three Stores Burned.

Rebecca, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—About 12 o'clock last night fire destroyed three brick stores on Ashley street occupied by Hartley & Paul, J. M. Wilcox and R. C. Gilmore. Loss of buildings will reach $5,000, and of stock of merchandise $15,000, partly covered by insurance.

See Famous Picture Film—The last opportunity which the colored people of Atlanta will have to see the famous moving picture film, "From the Manger to the Cross," which recently attracted widespread attention at the Montgomery theater, will be Saturday night at Big Bethel church. This picture has been exhibited there for the last two days and will be shown there Saturday night from 8 to 10 o'clock.

"MOVIES" OPERATE FOR FLOOD VICTIMS

Picture Houses Are Given Permit to Charge Admission on Next Sunday.

With the explicit understanding that the proceeds go to the flood sufferers, Mayor Woodward on Friday morning granted permits to motion picture theaters to operate Sunday and charge an admission.

A committee representing the managers of the various houses in Atlanta met with the mayor early Friday morning and asked for the permits. They told the mayor that the entire proceeds would be given to charity. The regular admission will be charged and about $1,000 will be raised.

The committee told the mayor that the pictures would be of a high moral standard. The theaters will open at 1 o'clock and close at 7 o'clock. They will reopen at 8:30 and run until 10:30. The closing will be out of respect of the services at the churches.

Mayor Woodward says that he considers the proposition of the picture managers to be a legitimate and proper way to raise money for a disaster that has swept through several states. The law says that works of necessity and charity are exempted from the Sunday closing law. Sargent and Redwood, Mayor Woodward says he feels that he is complying with the law.

Riverside 3, Furman 1.

Batteries: Haynes and McNeill; Plyler and Brown.

Alabama 4, Marion 1.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., March 28.—(Special.)—In a dull and uninteresting game Alabama defeated the prep school team of Marion Institute, score 4 to 1. Pratt did the twirling for the local line and held his opponents to three scattered hits. There was little stellar work on the part of the men. Moody's terrific drive in the second inning being a feature of the game, while Center Fielder Peoples, for Alabama, brought applause by a hard catch of a line drive.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Alabama 4 0 0 Marion 1 5 4

Merced 3, Gordon 0.

Barnesville, Ga., March 28.—(Special.)—In one of the hardest fought games ever played on Summers field, Merced defeated Gordon 3 to 0.

For Gordon Maxey twirled high-class ball, not a single Merced run being earned. For Merced Moses pitched in midseason form and had the prep line at his mercy. Forester went in for Merced in the eighth, but after walking the first two men Coach Strong yanked him and sent Moses back. Upon his return the remaining batters were unable to connect. Had Maxey been given good support not a Merced man would have crossed the plate.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Merced 3 0 0 Gordon 0 5 0

Batteries: Maxey and Bankston; Moses, Forester and Irwin. Time, 1:50. Umpire, Reiver.

HELEN GARDNER

IN CLEOPATRA

FIVE DAYS Commencing April 1st.

A picture such as this requires special attention to the music and this feature of the program has not been neglected at the MONTGOMERY THEATER. Several pieces have been added to the orchestra for this occasion.

An idea of the beauty of the production may be had from the fact that the costumes of Miss GARDNER and her jewels are valued at slightly more than $100,000.

It took five months' constant work to make the picture and more than 18,000 feet of film was used. From this amount the 6,000 feet of finished picture was selected.

Don't forget about those folders which tell the story. Just ask for one as you go into the theater.

PREFERENCE IS GIVEN TO RELIEF MESSAGES

New York, March 28.—(Special.)—At the offices of the American Telephone and Telegraph company and the Western Union Telegraph company, joint announcement was made as follows:

"In the use of the unnecessarily limited wire facilities reaching the flooded districts of Ohio and neighboring states, due importance is being given to public officials, relief associations, the press and to such urgent messages as have to do with measures of relief, believing that thus the public will be best served until full service can be restored."

"There has been no time during the past week when the combined facilities of the two companies have not afforded communication with the largest cities and towns, but local conditions render it impossible in many cases to deliver telegrams or to make local connection by telephone."
